Dear Parents/Carers,

Respectful Behaviour Sessions

As part of the school's Personal Social Health Education (PSHE) programme, we will be running a PSHE lesson on Respectful Behaviours over the next few days. The materials that we will be using to support this learning are presenting a balanced view and it has been written to reflect our specific school community and their needs. These resources are designed to support young people in identifying the features of positive relationships, as well recognising concern-ing behaviour and how to access support.

The session will be led by staff that the students know, and the students will be supported by a second adult in the classroom. Our student support team will be available after the lesson to answer any questions that students might have and to offer further support and guidance.

This theme is so important in being able to support our Saxmundham students in safe and respectful behaviours, inside and outside school. We will continue to check in with them on this theme so that they know they can 'reach out' to us.

Many thanks
